Mr. Austin Evers
American Oversight
1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255
Washington, DC 20005

SEP 19 2019

Dear Mr. Evers:

This letter is in response to your April 3, 2019, Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request for email communications (including emails, email attachments, and calendar invitations) of Director Darrell K. Williams, Vice Director Michael Scott, Chief of Staff Kristin French, Director Matthew Beebe, Deputy Director Roxanne Banks, Commander Brigadier General Albert G. Miller, Deputy Commander Guy Beougher, Chief of Staff Colonel Steve Davis, Director of Supplier Operations Gabriella Earhardt, and Director of Customer Operations Colonel John Martin, containing the terms Freedom Aviation, Liberty University, Liberty U and Falwell.

DLA conducted a thorough search pursuant to your request and located responsive email communications. The attached responsive records are withheld in part pursuant to exemptions, 5 U.S.C. §552(b)(5), internal or inter-Agency material, attorney-work product and attorney-client privilege and 5 U.S.C. §552(b)(6), personal privacy. Pursuant to the FOIA, we reviewed the responsive documents for all segregable portions. We found that some information was either inexplicably intertwined with other non-releasable data; or if segregated, would be rendered meaningless.

5 U.S.C. §552(b)(5) protects inter-agency or intra-agency memorandums or documents which would not be available by law to a party other than an Agency in litigation with the Agency such as preliminary drafts and discussions pertaining to Agency responses. Therefore, records containing draft e-mail or letters, advice, guidance, opinions and proposed responses are withheld pursuant to 5 U.S.C. §552 (b)(5)(A), deliberative process privilege. Exemption b(5)(A) protects inter-agency and intra-agency memorandums or letters that would not be available by law to a party other than an Agency in litigation with the Agency. DLA is invoking the "deliberative process" privilege to the pre-decisional documents provided in the records, the disclosure of which would injure the quality of the decision-making process within the Agency or impair the free and frank exchange of opinions and ideas between subordinates and supervisors. Therefore, the internal guidance, opinions and discussions between Agency employees concerning Agency matters are withheld in part.

Portions of the records have been withheld in their entirety pursuant to 5 U.S.C. §552 (b)(5)(C), attorney-client privilege. Exemption b(5)(C) protects confidential communications between an attorney and his client relating to a legal matter for which the client has sought professional advice such as attorney guidance, analysis and proposed responses to Agency employees concerning contract-related matters.

Lastly, portions of the records, the release of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, are withheld pursuant to 5 U.S.C. §552 (b)(6), personal privacy. Exemption (b)(6) protects information about individuals when disclosure would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy such email addresses identifying employees who are at or below the GS-15 or Directorate level and are not in the public domain.

You have the right to appeal this partial denial. An appeal must be made in writing to the General Counsel and reach the General Counsel's Office within 90 calendar days from the date of this letter, and no later than 5:00 pm Eastern Standard Time. The appeal should include your reasons for reconsideration and enclose a copy of this letter. An appeal may be submitted online via <https://foiaonline.regulations.gov/foia/action/public/request/publicPreCreate>, or mailed. Appeals are to be addressed to the FOIA and Privacy Office, Defense Logistics Agency, ATTN: IGC, Suite 1326, 8725 John J. Kingman Road, Fort Belvoir, Virginia 22060-6221.

This Agency decision concludes the processing of your request(s) referred to above. As part of the 2007 FOIA amendments, the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) was created to offer mediation services. Similarly, as part of the FOIA Improvement Act of 2016, DLA established a FOIA Public Liaison to offer mediation services. Both OGIS and the DLA Public Liaison will assist in resolving disputes between FOIA requesters and DLA as a non-exclusive alternative to appeal. Using OGIS or the DLA FOIA Public Liaison does not affect your right to pursue appeal nor does it stay the appeal clock. You may contact OGIS or the DLA Public Liaison in any of the following ways:

Subject: ROUTINE//INFO//Unfavorable Media Report

LTG Williams,

BLUF: Associated Press reporter is asking DLA PAO questions stemming from an article published in the Daily Beast that alleges DLA Energy contracted for into-plane services with a business owned by Jerry Falwell, a staunch supporter of President Trump.

DISCUSSION: In tomorrow's media clips there will be an article from the Daily Beast regarding an $889,087 Into-Plane Contract that was awarded to Freedom Aviation. The article suggests the contract was awarded inappropriately as a favor to Jerry Falwell, whose Liberty University is said to be the owner of Freedom Aviation. The article is pasted below my signature block.

Bob Burns from the Associated Press has picked up on the story and is asking DLA to explain how this contract came to be awarded to Freedom Aviation. HQ PA Pat Mackin has responded to both reporters and explained (with information provided by DLA Energy) that the contract was awarded under a routine, competitive acquisition for into-plane contract fuel that covered the area from Maine to Florida and listed 94 airports. Freedom Aviation is the sole fixed-base operator (FBO) at the Lynchburg Regional Airport and submitted the only offer for this location. Virginia Aviation had the same contract before being bought by and changing names to Freedom Aviation (circa 2014). Freedom Aviation's offer price of $2.69024 per gallon, subject to market price adjustment, was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region.

RECOMMENDATION: None, FYI only.

VR,

AI

"Trump Ally Jerry Falwell's Liberty University Landed Pentagon Contract Months After Trump's Election" by Lachian Markay

Just months after President Donald Trump took office, the federal government signed a contract to buy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of jet fuel from a university run by one of the president's top political supporters.

The Pentagon's energy-procurement arm inked the contract < Caution-
<https://govtribe.com/award/federal-idv-award/indefinite-delivery-contract-spe60017d0090> > , valued at nearly $900,000, with a company called Freedom Aviation on May 9, 2017, and has purchased more than $400,000 in turbine fuel from the company since then. Freedom Aviation is wholly owned < Caution-
https://apps.irs.gov/pub/epostcard/cor/540946734_201706_990_2018103015847302.pdf > by Liberty University, a conservative school in Lynchburg, Virginia, led by high-profile Trump supporter Jerry Falwell Jr.

Freedom Aviation owns six planes, according to Federal Aviation Administration records < Caution-https://registry.faa.gov/aircraftinquiry/Name_Results.aspx?Nametxt=FREEDOM+AVIATION+INC&sort_option=1&PageNo=1 > , and maintains them at a Lynchburg hangar for Liberty's popular flight school. It also provides charter flights to the general public, and Falwell has used the aircraft for travel involving his personal, business, and political affairs. But neither Freedom nor C&C Aviation, another company owned by the university, had ever won a federal fuel contract prior to Trump's election.

The Defense Logistics Agency, the agency that actually buys the fuel, said that Freedom Aviation was hired to refuel military and government aircraft at the Lynchburg airport, where it's the sole "fixed-base operator," and that it "submitted the only offer" for those services. Its per-gallon rate, $2.69, "was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region," according to DLA spokesman Patrick Mackin.

Liberty did not respond to questions about the contract.

Government ethicists, however, say the agreement raises red flags given Liberty's apparent lack of experience in providing such services to the federal government, and Falwell's outspoken backing for the Trump administration.

"It's possible there's a legitimate reason why the Defense Department is sending hundreds of thousands of dollars to one of President Trump's biggest political supporters, but everything about this contract raises red flags," Austin Evers, the executive director of transparency group American Oversight, said when presented with The Daily Beast's findings. "The Trump administration has lost the benefit of the doubt on anything that even resembles a conflict of interest."

Falwell, whose father was a prominent evangelical leader, remains one of the president's most committed backers in the conservative Christian community. And Trump has reciprocated that support. Just four days after the Pentagon inked its contract with Freedom Aviation, the president gave the commencement address at Liberty University.

Falwell also appears to have used Freedom Aviation in service of the Trump campaign. He officially endorsed Trump in late January 2016, and joined him at a rally in Council Bluffs, Iowa, a day before the state's crucial Republican presidential caucus. About a week later, the Trump campaign paid Freedom Aviation < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201603209011931795> > more than $19,000 for air travel expenses.

Right to Rise, a super PAC supporting 2016 Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush, also paid Freedom Aviation the year before, writing the company < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201507319000514783> > a $2,000 check on May 11, 2015. That was two days after Bush, who had not yet declared his candidacy, gave that year's commencement speech at Liberty.

Falwell has acknowledged using university-owned planes for personal and business travel in Liberty's annual tax filings.

Subject: Contractor Responsibility Determinations
Date: Wednesday, March 27, 2019 2:45:29 PM

Guiding Principles

Contracting Officers are responsible for ensuring that contract awards are made only to responsible prospective contractors. This requirement applies to both competitive and non-competitive awards.

What does the FAR require?

In accordance with FAR 9.103(b), no contract award shall be made unless the Contracting Officer makes an affirmative determination of the prospective contractor's responsibility. In the absence of information clearly indicating that the prospective contractor is responsible, the Contracting Officer shall make a determination of nonresponsibility.

What Makes a Contractor Responsible?

The standards of contractor responsibility and the requirement for the Contracting Officer to make and document a responsibility determination are set forth in FAR 9.104 and 9.105. To be determined responsible, a prospective contractor must –

- ▶ Have adequate financial resources to perform the contract, or the ability to obtain them.
- ▶ Be able to comply with the required or proposed delivery or performance schedule, taking into consideration all existing commercial and governmental business commitments.
- ▶ Have a satisfactory performance record. A prospective contractor shall not be determined responsible or nonresponsible solely on the basis of a lack of relevant performance history, except as provided in FAR 9.104-2.
- ▶ Have a satisfactory record of integrity and business ethics.
- ▶ Have the necessary organization, experience, accounting and operational controls, and technical skills, or the ability to obtain them (including, as appropriate, such elements as production control procedures, property control systems, quality assurance measures, and safety programs applicable to materials to be produced or services to be performed by the prospective contractor and subcontractors).
- ▶ Have the necessary production, construction, and technical equipment and facilities, or the ability to obtain them.
- ▶ Be otherwise qualified and eligible to receive an award under applicable laws and regulations.

5. How much does DOD expect to pay Freedom Aviation under the contract before its expiration?

Currently there is $50,966.34 due to Freedom Aviation. The total amount to be paid under the contract depends on how often our customers buy fuel at this airport.

6. Did any official(s) outside of DLA Energy participate in this contracting decision? If so, please provide the list of officials, titles, and their office/organization.

The contract was awarded under a routine, competitive acquisition for into-plane contract fuel at 94 airports that covered the area from Maine to Florida.

Importance: High

Hi Dave and Jim,

I received a call this morning from the Daily Beast reporter asking about a DLA Energy jet fuel contract with the company Freedom Aviation. As best as the reporter can tell, that company had never provided any federal entity with fuel before this contract was signed on June 1, 2017, so he wants details on how this contract came about (was Freedom Aviation approached, did they independently submit a bid, etc).

He also wants to know what DLA Energy is paying per unit of fuel under this contract, and how that compares to other comparable agreements.

The number of Freedom Aviation's indefinite delivery contract in question is SPE60017D0090.

The reporter is requesting information by COB today.

Thank you.

LTG Williams,

BLUF: Associated Press reporter is asking DLA PAO questions stemming from an article published in the Daily Beast that alleges DLA Energy contracted for into-plane services with a business owned by Jerry Falwell, a staunch supporter of President Trump.

DISCUSSION: In tomorrow's media clips there will be an article from the Daily Beast regarding an $889,087 Into-Plane Contract that was awarded to Freedom Aviation. The article suggests the contract was awarded inappropriately as a favor to Jerry Falwell, whose Liberty University is said to be the owner of Freedom Aviation. The article is pasted below my signature block.

Bob Burns from the Associated Press has picked up on the story and is asking DLA to explain how this contract came to be awarded to Freedom Aviation. HQ PA Pat Mackin has responded to both reporters and explained (with information provided by DLA Energy) that the contract was awarded under a routine, competitive acquisition for into-plane contract fuel that covered the area from Maine to Florida and listed 94 airports. Freedom Aviation is the sole fixed-base operator (FBO) at the Lynchburg Regional Airport and submitted the only offer for this location. Virginia Aviation had the same contract before being bought by and changing names to Freedom Aviation (circa 2014). Freedom Aviation's offer price of $2.69024 per gallon, subject to market price adjustment, was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region.

RECOMMENDATION: None, FYI only.

Just months after President Donald Trump took office, the federal government signed a contract to buy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of jet fuel from a university run by one of the president’s top political supporters.

The Pentagon’s energy-procurement arm inked the contract < Caution-<https://govtribe.com/award/federal-idv-award/indefinite-delivery-contract-spe60017d0090> > , valued at nearly $900,000, with a company called Freedom Aviation on May 9, 2017, and has purchased more than $400,000 in turbine fuel from the company since then. Freedom Aviation is wholly owned < Caution-https://apps.irs.gov/pub/epostcard/cor/540946734_201706_990_2018103015847302.pdf > by Liberty University, a conservative school in Lynchburg, Virginia, led by high-profile Trump supporter Jerry Falwell Jr.

Freedom Aviation owns six planes, according to Federal Aviation Administration records < Caution-[https://registry.faa.gov/aircraftinquiry/Name_Results.aspx?
NameTxt=FREEDOM+AVIATION+INC&sort_option=1&PageNo=1](https://registry.faa.gov/aircraftinquiry/Name_Results.aspx?NameTxt=FREEDOM+AVIATION+INC&sort_option=1&PageNo=1) > , and maintains them at a Lynchburg hangar for Liberty’s popular flight school. It also provides charter flights to the general public, and Falwell has used the aircraft for travel involving his personal, business, and political affairs. But neither Freedom nor C&C Aviation, another company owned by the university, had ever won a federal fuel contract prior to Trump’s election.

The Defense Logistics Agency, the agency that actually buys the fuel, said that Freedom Aviation was hired to refuel military and government aircraft at the Lynchburg airport, where it’s the sole “fixed-base operator,” and that it “submitted the only offer” for those services. Its per-gallon rate, $2.69, “was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region,” according to DLA spokesman Patrick Mackin.

Liberty did not respond to questions about the contract.

Government ethicists, however, say the agreement raises red flags given Liberty’s apparent lack of experience in providing such services to the federal government, and Falwell’s outspoken backing for the Trump administration.

“It’s possible there’s a legitimate reason why the Defense Department is sending hundreds of thousands of dollars to one of President Trump’s biggest political supporters, but everything about this contract raises red flags,” Austin Evers, the executive director of transparency group

American Oversight, said when presented with The Daily Beast's findings. "The Trump administration has lost the benefit of the doubt on anything that even resembles a conflict of interest."

Falwell, whose father was a prominent evangelical leader, remains one of the president's most committed backers in the conservative Christian community. And Trump has reciprocated that support. Just four days after the Pentagon inked its contract with Freedom Aviation, the president gave the commencement address at Liberty University.

Falwell also appears to have used Freedom Aviation in service of the Trump campaign. He officially endorsed Trump in late January 2016, and joined him at a rally in Council Bluffs, Iowa, a day before the state's crucial Republican presidential caucus. About a week later, the Trump campaign paid Freedom Aviation < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201603209011931795> > more than $19,000 for air travel expenses.

Right to Rise, a super PAC supporting 2016 Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush, also paid Freedom Aviation the year before, writing the company < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201507319000514783> > a $2,000 check on May 11, 2015. That was two days after Bush, who had not yet declared his candidacy, gave that year's commencement speech at Liberty.

Falwell has acknowledged using university-owned planes for personal and business travel in Liberty's annual tax filings.

DP also recently researched information related to Freedom Aviation when they were gathering details for a possible response to AP and Daily Beast reporters. I have attached their information. It provides some background information on the contract history and mentions a company named Virginia Aviation. The DLA Energy response mentions Aviation Resources, Inc. Can you please take a look at the attached information and let me know if we need to mention Virginia Aviation as well?

Just trying to reconcile the information on the contract history. Also, is there any background information in the attached that you can add to this response to give the staffer more insight into the contract?

Thanks,

“Trump Ally Jerry Falwell’s Liberty University Landed Pentagon Contract Months After Trump’s Election” by Lachian Markay

Just months after President Donald Trump took office, the federal government signed a contract to buy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of jet fuel from a university run by one of the president’s top political supporters.

The Pentagon’s energy-procurement arm inked the contract < Caution-
<https://govtribe.com/award/federal-idv-award/indefinite-delivery-contract-spe60017d0090> > , valued at nearly $900,000, with a company called Freedom Aviation on May 9, 2017, and has purchased more than $400,000 in turbine fuel from the company since then. Freedom Aviation is wholly owned < Caution-https://apps.irs.gov/pub/epostcard/cor/540946734_201706_990_2018103015847302.pdf
> by Liberty University, a conservative school in Lynchburg, Virginia, led by high-profile Trump supporter Jerry Falwell Jr.

Freedom Aviation owns six planes, according to Federal Aviation Administration records < Caution-
https://registry.faa.gov/aircraftinquiry/Name_Results.aspx?Nametxt=FREEDOM+AVIATION+INC&sort_option=1&PageNo=1 > , and maintains them at a Lynchburg hangar for Liberty’s popular flight school. It also provides charter flights to the general public, and Falwell has used the aircraft for travel involving his personal, business, and political affairs. But neither Freedom nor C&C Aviation, another company owned by the university, had ever won a federal fuel contract prior to Trump’s election.

The Defense Logistics Agency, the agency that actually buys the fuel, said that Freedom Aviation was hired to refuel military and government aircraft at the Lynchburg airport, where it’s the sole “fixed-base operator,” and that it “submitted the only offer” for those services. Its per-gallon rate, $2.69, “was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region,” according to DLA spokesman Patrick Mackin.

Liberty did not respond to questions about the contract.

Government ethicists, however, say the agreement raises red flags given Liberty’s apparent lack of experience in providing such services to the federal government, and Falwell’s outspoken backing for the Trump administration.

“It’s possible there’s a legitimate reason why the Defense Department is sending hundreds of thousands of dollars to one of President Trump’s biggest political supporters, but everything about this contract raises red flags,” Austin Evers, the executive director of transparency group American Oversight, said when presented with The Daily Beast’s findings. “The Trump administration has lost the benefit of the doubt on anything that even resembles a conflict of interest.”

Falwell, whose father was a prominent evangelical leader, remains one of the president’s most committed backers in the conservative Christian community. And Trump has reciprocated that support. Just four days after the Pentagon inked its contract with Freedom Aviation, the president gave the commencement address at Liberty University.

Falwell also appears to have used Freedom Aviation in service of the Trump campaign. He officially endorsed Trump in late January 2016, and joined him at a rally in Council Bluffs, Iowa, a day before the state’s crucial Republican presidential caucus. About a week later, the Trump campaign paid Freedom Aviation < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201603209011931795> > more than $19,000 for air travel expenses.

Right to Rise, a super PAC supporting 2016 Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush, also paid Freedom Aviation the year before, writing the company < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201507319000514783> > a $2,000 check on May 11, 2015. That was two days after Bush, who had not yet declared his candidacy, gave that year’s commencement speech at Liberty.

Falwell has acknowledged using university-owned planes for personal and business travel in Liberty’s annual tax filings.

Subject: Contractor Responsibility Determinations
Date: Wednesday, March 27, 2019 2:45:29 PM

Guiding Principles

Contracting Officers are responsible for ensuring that contract awards are made only to responsible prospective contractors. This requirement applies to both competitive and non-competitive awards.

What does the FAR require?

In accordance with FAR 9.103(b), no contract award shall be made unless the Contracting Officer makes an affirmative determination of the prospective contractor's responsibility. In the absence of information clearly indicating that the prospective contractor is responsible, the Contracting Officer shall make a determination of nonresponsibility.

What Makes a Contractor Responsible?

The standards of contractor responsibility and the requirement for the Contracting Officer to make and document a responsibility determination are set forth in FAR 9.104 and 9.105. To be determined responsible, a prospective contractor must –

- ▶ Have adequate financial resources to perform the contract, or the ability to obtain them.
- ▶ Be able to comply with the required or proposed delivery or performance schedule, taking into consideration all existing commercial and governmental business commitments.
- ▶ Have a satisfactory performance record. A prospective contractor shall not be determined responsible or nonresponsible solely on the basis of a lack of relevant performance history, except as provided in FAR 9.104-2.
- ▶ Have a satisfactory record of integrity and business ethics.
- ▶ Have the necessary organization, experience, accounting and operational controls, and technical skills, or the ability to obtain them (including, as appropriate, such elements as production control procedures, property control systems, quality assurance measures, and safety programs applicable to materials to be produced or services to be performed by the prospective contractor and subcontractors).
- ▶ Have the necessary production, construction, and technical equipment and facilities, or the ability to obtain them.
- ▶ Be otherwise qualified and eligible to receive an award under applicable laws and regulations.

Ms. Hall,

Per the article below, President Trump has now made the 2019 federal pay raise official. We should probably shape expectations for the work force on when they will see it in their paychecks. I understand this is a significant workload, especially if personnel had assignment actions in the interim, and also hinges on DFAS' bandwidth. Do you know if J1 intends to put something out across the enterprise?

1). DLA Troop Support's Diana Stewart named Federal Managers Association Manager of the Year

FMA.org | Staff Writer | Thursday, March 28, 2019

Recognized by her peers, Ms. Stewart, the Acting Director of the Command Support Office at Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support in Philadelphia, provides exceptional leadership.

Alexandria, VA - The Federal Managers Association (FMA) is proud to announce Ms. Diana Stewart as the winner of FMA's Manager of the Year award. She is Vice President of FMA Chapter 208, Defense Logistics Agency, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She has provided outstanding leadership in a variety of positions in her career.

The Federal Managers Association strives to promote excellence in public service and is proud to name Diana Stewart of FMA Chapter 208, Defense Logistics Agency (DLA), Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, as FMA's 2018 Manager of the Year. She exemplifies the Association's mission.

Stewart not only serves the DLA professionally, but has shown dedication and leadership to her community, fellow managers, and employees. Diana has received numerous performance awards over her career, as well as the Superior Civilian Service Award, the Meritorious Civilian Service Award, the Federal Executive Board (FEB) Gold Medal, and the National Performance Review Hammer Award. She has been a member of FMA Chapter 208 since 2007, and currently serves as Vice President of this active chapter which boasts nearly 300 members. Her selfless leadership and hard work have enabled Chapter 208 to grow and provide stellar advocacy for its members.

Renee Johnson, FMA's national president, praised Stewart, saying, "Diana is a conscientious worker, and a very dedicated and responsible person who is most deserving of this recognition. As can be seen by her many pursuits, she is a 'go-getter' and a true believer in performing her mission at work while helping her fellow managers and her community. She is a model manager for DLA, the Department of Defense, and the entire federal workforce. FMA is proud of her tenacious commitment to the association, her agency's mission and service to the American public. Our country owes her a debt of gratitude."

Stewart serves as the Acting Director, Command Support Office with responsibility as primary advisor and assistant to the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) Troop Support Commander on all aspects of command support for organizational development and strategic communications and as lead for business strategy, formulation, and coordination. DLA Troop Support in Philadelphia annually purchases more than $17 billion worth of food, clothing, textiles, medicines, medical supplies, construction and equipment items, as well as industrial hardware items for America's warfighters and other customers worldwide. She directs and supervises complex strategic planning and Command Support functions for the entire DLA Troop Support organization.

In this role, Stewart is responsible for providing overall administration, control and implementation of DLA policies, programs, plans, procedures, and resource management as related to organizational development for organizational alignment, change management, the corporate intern program, leadership development, employee recognition, climate/culture change and training resources. She is also responsible for executing the organization's comprehensive strategic communications program to include the command dynamic operating plan and briefings for engagements with DLA Headquarters, customers and stakeholders, as well as the public affairs and legislative affairs missions, media relations and the community relations program.

Diana Stewart has tirelessly performed the duties of the Director, Command Support Office, in addition to her regular duties as Chief, Strategic Communications, since January 2017 to the present due to the retirement of the Director. Stewart is dynamic and dedicated in her position. Stewart performs at an exceptional level not only ensuring the DLA Troop Support leadership is informed and updated with the information they require to perform their mission for the warfighter, but also ensuring the personnel under her realm in the Command Support Office receive her leadership, support, and the essential tools to perform their functions. This is especially challenging now, as the office is currently undergoing reorganization, and key positions have been vacated due to retirements and promotions, leaving important functions still requiring attention.

Above and beyond her other duties, Diana serves as the chairperson for the Family Day event for the DLA Troop Support workforce. She has spearheaded this event for several years, while still maintaining and executing her work mission. Diana puts much of her personal time towards executing this event to ensure it is a success. This is just one example of her dedication to her colleagues and the workforce.

Prior to her position in the Command Support Office, Stewart held various functional and staff positions within the organization's Medical Material supply chain and played a key role in the success of the Medical Prime Vendor Program which has proven to be the model of one of the best contracting processes today. She has been involved in a variety of the organization's initiatives to shift to commercial business practices including supply chain management.

Diana is very active in her home community, where she energetically participates on the Finance Committee for Our Lady of Fatima Church in Secane, Pennsylvania, and is also a Lector and Catechist. She holds the position of the Human Resources Director for the Aquatic Swim Club in Morton, Pennsylvania.

The FMA Manager of the Year award is presented annually to an outstanding manager or supervisor in the federal government who is a member of the Federal Managers Association. Chapters may nominate one member to their respective region director, and that officer submits the name of the nominee and supporting documentation for consideration of the award. The selection committee reviews three categories in determining the winner:

- Workplace accomplishments/contributions

- FMA involvement at the chapter, regional or national levels

- Local community accomplishments/contributions

"We are very proud to see Diana Stewart recognized for this prestigious award, and I speak for all when I say Diana is very deserving of this award," said Susanne McHale, President of FMA Chapter 208. "Her workplace accomplishments, her tireless involvement in FMA and her local community makes her a commendable winner. Diana is always forging ahead, and her actions have kept our local chapter thriving. Her leadership skills should be modelled by all federal managers. Thank you, Diana, for all your hard work!"

FMA National President Renee Johnson commented, "We are so fortunate to have a leader like Diana Stewart in the federal government, supporting our warfighters with distinction. She reminds us of the many federal employees who seek to do their best each and every day to keep us safe and improve the quality of life for all Americans. Diana has risen to this challenge her entire career, and we are honored she represents the best of the Federal Managers Association. Thank you, Diana, for your constant and exemplary example."

2). Trump Ally Jerry Falwell's Liberty University Landed Pentagon Contract Months After Trump's Election

The Daily Beast | Lachlan Markay | Thursday, March 28, 2019

Just months after President Donald Trump took office, the federal government signed a contract to buy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of jet fuel from a university run by one of the president's top political supporters.

The Pentagon's energy-procurement arm inked the contract, valued at nearly $900,000, with a company called Freedom Aviation on May 9, 2017, and has purchased more than $400,000 in turbine fuel from the company since then. Freedom Aviation is wholly owned by Liberty University, a conservative school in Lynchburg, Virginia, led by high-profile Trump supporter Jerry Falwell Jr.

Freedom Aviation owns six planes, according to Federal Aviation Administration records, and maintains them at a Lynchburg hangar for Liberty's popular flight school. It also provides charter flights to the general public, and Falwell has used the aircraft for travel involving his personal, business, and political affairs. But neither Freedom nor C&C Aviation, another company owned by the university, had ever won a federal fuel contract prior to Trump's election.

The Defense Logistics Agency, the agency that actually buys the fuel, said that Freedom Aviation was hired to refuel military and government aircraft at the Lynchburg airport, where it's the sole "fixed-base operator," and that it "submitted the only offer" for those services. Its per-gallon rate, $2.69, "was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region," according to DLA spokesman Patrick Mackin.

Liberty did not respond to questions about the contract.

Government ethicists, however, say the agreement raises red flags given Liberty's apparent lack of experience in providing such services to the federal government, and Falwell's outspoken backing for the Trump administration.

"It's possible there's a legitimate reason why the Defense Department is sending hundreds of thousands of dollars to one of President Trump's biggest political supporters, but everything about this contract raises red flags," Austin Evers, the executive director of transparency group American Oversight, said when presented with The Daily Beast's findings. "The Trump administration has lost the benefit of the doubt on anything that even resembles a conflict of interest."

Falwell, whose father was a prominent evangelical leader, remains one of the president's most committed backers in the conservative Christian community. And Trump has reciprocated that support. Just four days after the Pentagon inked its contract with Freedom Aviation, the president gave the commencement address at Liberty University.

Falwell also appears to have used Freedom Aviation in service of the Trump campaign. He officially endorsed Trump in late January 2016, and joined him at a rally in Council Bluffs, Iowa, a day before the state's crucial Republican presidential caucus. About a week later, the Trump campaign paid Freedom Aviation more than $19,000 for air travel expenses.

Right to Rise, a super PAC supporting 2016 Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush, also paid Freedom Aviation the year before, writing the company a $2,000 check on May 11, 2015. That was two days after Bush, who had not yet declared his candidacy, gave that year's commencement speech at Liberty.

Falwell has acknowledged using university-owned planes for personal and business travel in Liberty's annual tax filings.

3). Behind the scenes: traffic management specialists play critical role in mission readiness

DVIDs | Tech Sgt. Stephanie Sawyer | Thursday, March 28, 2019

Tech. Sgt. Romulus Kocsis is a full-time traffic management specialist for the 142nd Logistics Readiness Squadron at Portland Air National Guard Base. As such, Kocsis is responsible for the shipping and receiving of supplies, directly effecting mission readiness and success on a local and world-wide scale.

The warehouse that Kocsis works out of is part of a network of warehouses belonging to the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA), the largest supplier of goods for the Department of Defense. They balance shortages between warehouses world-wide, so a lot of the orders Kocsis fulfills are coming from or going out to different bases spanning all branches of the U.S. Military.

"Wherever there's a need for something that we have in the warehouse, I have to process it according to priority," says Kocsis. "On top of that we have the local mission: the F-15s--all the parts...if they break and need replacing or shipping, we also support that."

Kocsis' job requires a considerable amount of diligence and attention to detail. Because they process incoming and outgoing supplies from all over the world, traffic management specialists must adhere to strict regulations and documentation. Kocsis says it's a matter of being aware of the standards and requirements unique to each parcel and being able to operate within those guidelines while determining the most efficient method of transport.

“Most of the time we have to balance and find the right way of doing business...we have overlapping regulations and we have to see which one supersedes the other,” says Kocsis. “There’s also shipping requirements, time requirements, there’s all kinds of things.”

For traffic management specialists, it’s safe to say that the seamless and precise execution of the U.S. military’s mission depends, in part, on how well they do their jobs.

“We’re kind of like the forgotten children of the base,” says Kocsis. “Nobody knows about us until they need us, but we impact everything.”

Kocsis says the most gratifying aspect of his job is seeing his shelves empty at the end of the day and knowing that product and supplies will get to where they need to go.

“Being able to impact so many careers, so many bases, so many agencies, I think it’s a privilege,” says Kocsis. “For me, being able to ship everything and get my job done at the end of the day, that’s my instant satisfaction.”

4) Trump at last makes 2019 federal pay raise official

Federal News Radio | Nicole Ogrysko | Thursday, March 28, 2019

After employees had anxiously awaited for more than a month for a bump in their paychecks, President Donald Trump on Thursday made the 1.9 percent federal pay raise official.

The executive order, which the President signed Thursday, authorized an average, across-the-board raise of 1.4 percent, with an additional 0.5 percent adjusted in locality pay rates.

In total, civilian employees will receive an average 1.9 percent raise. The raise applies to the vice president, members of the Senior Executive Service, political appointees and GS-15s who have reached the Executive Schedule ceiling and had previously experienced several years of pay freezes.

The raise is retroactive to the first pay period in 2019, which for most civilian employees would have begun on Jan. 6.

The EO rescinds the order Trump signed back in December, which froze pay for civilian employees at 2018 levels.

The 1.9 percent raise was part of the spending package that Congress passed and the President signed into law back on Feb. 15.

Federal employees have been waiting and asking for updates on the status of the raise since then. Margaret Weichert, acting director of the Office of Personnel Management and deputy director for the Office of Management and Budget, said last week she understood federal employees were frustrated with the wait. She added that the lengthy legal exercise the administration had to complete in order to finalize the federal pay raise demonstrated a clear need to modernize the pay system altogether.

It's still unclear when exactly employees will see these raises — along with a lump sum to reflect the retroactive pay they've earned as of the beginning of the year — in their paychecks. Most federal employees were last paid on or near March 22 at 2018 levels. The current pay period for most civilian employees ends Friday, March 30, with checks due on or around April 5.

The President also approved new locality pay rates for 2019, which OPM has detailed in a series of new memos.

You can find OPM's full list of updated 2019 pay tables here.

To be clear, the 1.9 percent raise is an average. Federal employees in certain locality pay areas will receive more than the average, while others will receive less.

Employees in the Washington, D.C.-Baltimore, Maryland, locality pay area will see increases totaling 2.27 percent. Employees in the "rest of U.S." will receive a total increase of 1.66 percent.

Some 72,000 federal employees in the six new locality pay areas that the President approved late last year should see a slight difference now in their pay adjustments. The administration had added Birmingham, Alabama; Burlington, Vermont; Corpus Christi, Texas; Omaha, Nebraska; San Antonio, Texas; and Virginia Beach/Norfolk, Virginia, as separate locality pay areas for the first time back in December, but with rates frozen at 2018 levels, employees in those locations subsequently had their pay locked in at "rest of U.S." rates.

Now, employees in these six new locality pay areas will see the following locality payments, as opposed to the 15.37 percent they received under their previous "rest of U.S." designation.

Employees in these six new locality areas hoping for big pay boosts may be disappointed. While federal workers in these areas ultimately secured higher raises than they did in 2018, the rising number of distinct locality pay areas may be to blame.

"When locality pay percentages are adjusted, the practice has been to allocate a percent of the total GS payroll for locality pay raises and to have the overall cost for such pay raises be the same, regardless of the number of locality pay areas," OPM wrote in December in the final rule announcing the addition of the six new areas.

Last year's rulemaking brings the total number of locality pay areas separate from the "rest of U.S." to 52.

The 2019 pay raise is the first time in several years that Congress has acted to override the President's plans for federal pay. Trump originally chose to freeze pay this year for civilian employees at 2018 levels.

Momentum to provide civilian employees a 2.6 percent increase this year picked up after the longest government shutdown in U.S. history ended in late January, with legislation authorizing the raise scoring bipartisan support in both the House and Senate.

A 1.9 percent pay raise, however, ultimately gained the most consensus, with federal employees earning an increase of equal amount back in 2018.

Members of the military are receiving a 2.6 percent pay raise in 2019.

Some members of Congress are already thinking about federal pay in 2020, as Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-Va.) and Sen. Brian Schatz (D-Hawaii) introduced legislation that would grant federal employees a 3.6 percent raise next year.

5). Pentagon plans barriers near Columbus, NM

Las Cruces Sun-News | Algernon D'Ammassa | Thursday, March 28, 2019

As part of its plan to divert up to $1 billion to construct 57 miles of physical barriers along the U.S.-Mexico border, the Department of Defense is proposing 46 miles of vehicle barriers in Luna and Doña Ana counties, U.S. Sen. Tom Udall, D-N.M., announced Tuesday.

Udall, who learned about the proposed New Mexico barriers from information provided to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense, explained in a statement for the Sun-News, "the project includes 46 miles of vehicle barrier replacement beginning approximately 17.5 miles west of the Columbus Port of Entry continuing east in non-contiguous segments to approximately 35 miles east of the Columbus Port of Entry."

Acting Defense Secretary Patrick Shanahan told the U.S. House Armed Services Committee on Tuesday the Pentagon was executing an order by President Donald Trump, who declared a national emergency on Feb. 15 after Congress appropriated less than the $5.7 billion he had requested for a border wall.

Udall argued that the plan compromises military preparedness and drug interdiction programs.

In New Mexico, the proposal includes potentially diverting up to $187.5 million in funds for projects at White Sands Missile Range, Holloman Air Force Base, Kirtland Air Force Base and Cannon Air Force Base.

"The Department of Defense should be standing up for our military personnel and readiness needs, not allowing themselves to become a piggy bank for a president's pet project," Udall said in a media release.

Udall, who announced on Monday that he would not seek re-election to the Senate in 2020, has introduced legislation to block the emergency reappropriations.

Shanahan told the House committee more barriers are needed to "block drug-smuggling corridors across international boundaries of the United States in support of counter-narcotic activities of federal law enforcement agencies," despite data showing that narcotics smuggling is caught most frequently at ports of entry.

A vote in the U.S. House of Representatives Tuesday failed to override President Trump's veto of a congressional resolution rejecting his emergency declaration.

U.S. Rep. Xochitl Torres Small, D-N.M., who sits on the House Armed Services Committee that questioned Shanahan Tuesday, said the declaration means "billions of dollars appropriated for Department of Defense programs and military construction projects will be misdirected."

Torres Small represents New Mexico's second congressional district, where Holloman Air Force Base and White Sands Missile Range are located. The proposed border barriers would also be in her district.

During Tuesday's hearing, Torres Small used her allotted time to criticize the Pentagon's response to groundwater contamination from highly toxic per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances, known as PFAS, at Cannon and Holloman Air Force bases, among dozens of other military sites.

In a statement, Torres Small urged the president "to respect Congress' bipartisan rejection of the national emergency declaration, reconsider this reappropriation of funds, and return to the negotiating table so we can work together on crafting effective and efficient border security solutions, including a clear and moral immigration system."

6). DARPA seeks funding increases, new programs under AI campaign

Inside Defense SITREP | Justin Doubleday | Thursday, March 28, 2019

The Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency is seeking a $65 million funding boost in fiscal year 2020 for its main portfolio of artificial intelligence development efforts, as well as an array of other increases and new-start projects related to AI and machine learning.

DARPA wants to invest $2 billion over the next five years under its "AI Next" campaign, with the agency requesting $409 million for AI-related research and development in FY-20, according to the Defense Department.

Budget justification documents released last week shows DARPA's AI-related spending is spread across multiple program elements and projects.

DARPA is requesting $161 million in FY-20 for the "artificial intelligence and human-machine symbiosis" portfolio of programs, a $65 million increase compared to FY-19, according to the budget documents.

The portfolio's FY-20 budget includes $26 million for the Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) program, which "is developing a new generation of machine-learning techniques that are able to produce a rationale to explain the conclusions they reach," the documents state.

It also includes $25 million for an "Assured Autonomy" program to develop "rigorous design and analysis technologies for continual assurance of learning-enabled autonomous systems to guarantee safety properties in uncertain environments."

An additional $25 million would go toward the "Active Interpretation of Disparate Alternatives" (AIDA) program, which is developing a "multi-hypothesis semantic engine that generates alternative interpretations of events, situations, and trends from a variety of unstructured sources for use in environments where there are noisy, conflicting, and potentially deceptive data," the documents state.

A "Human-Machine Symbiosis" program would see its funding doubled to $16 million under the FY-20 budget request. The program aims to pair machines with humans as "colleagues, partners, and teammates," the budget documents state.

"If successful, HMS technologies will enable machines to do more than execute pre-programmed instructions," they continue. "Rather, HMS-enabled machines will understand speech; extract information contained in diverse media; learn, reason and apply knowledge gained through experience; identify and work to fill knowledge gaps; extrapolate causal phenomena to anticipate predictable outcomes; and respond intelligently to new and unforeseen events."

DARPA also wants to begin three new projects under the "artificial intelligence and human-machine symbiosis" portfolio. One called "Automated Knowledge Acquisition" (AKA) aims to develop "technologies to automate the integration of diverse sources of data and information into a unified whole," budget documents state, negating the need for human engineers to map a source's metadata. DARPA is seeking $24 million to start the AKA program in FY-20.

The agency is also requesting $24 million to begin the "Accelerating Artificial Intelligence" (AAI) program, which proposes to "go beyond commercially driven advances in AI and address important national security challenge applications," the documents state.

"In particular, this program is focused on improving DOD processes that, because of the need for excessive human involvement, create bottlenecks in DOD's ability to rapidly adapt and deploy new technologies and capabilities," they continue. "If successful, research efforts under this program will significantly reduce the time and cost associated with many important developmental, approval and certification processes."

The third new-start program, "Knowledge-directed AI Reasoning Over Schemas" (KAIROS), is aimed at developing AI and machine learning "to aid a human operator in understanding complex event sequences," the budget documents state. DARPA is seeking $15.4 million to start KAIROS in FY-20.

"For the purposes of KAIROS, an event is an occurrence that results in an observable and recognizable change in either the physical world or human society," the documents state. "Events of particular interest to KAIROS are those that create changes that have significant impact on national or homeland security."

Elsewhere in the budget request, DARPA is seeking $220 million for "math and computer sciences" to leverage "emerging mathematical and computational capabilities including computational social science, artificial intelligence, machine learning and reasoning, data science, complex systems modeling and simulation, and theory of computation," according to budget documents. The FY-20 request marks a $32 million increase above the enacted FY-19 budget.

Additionally, DARPA is seeking $16 million to continue its "Lifelong Learning Machines" program in FY-20.

"Current learning machines are fully configured in advance of deployment, meaning that they have difficulty accounting for in-the-field mission changes or for unexpected deviations in the data being processed," the documents state. "To overcome this limitation, L2M will pursue learning approaches inspired by biological systems, which continuously learn and improve their skills without losing previous knowledge."

The agency is also seeking $5 million to start a new "CounterSwarmAI" program as part of its "Aeronautics Technology" portfolio.

"CounterSwarmAI decision software will directly interface with future and legacy defensive systems (kinetic and non-kinetic) to rapidly assess, optimally exploit, and efficiently defeat enemy autonomous systems threats," the budget documents state.

DARPA's increased funding request for AI is part of the Pentagon's push for nearly $1 billion in defense-wide AI investments in FY-20

7). JEDI: New Intelligence Community Cloud Will Have Multiple Providers; Incentives Mount for DOD to Reconsider JEDI's Single-Provider Approach

The Capitol Forum | Staff Writer | Wednesday, March 27, 2019

The intelligence community's (IC) next major cloud services contract will pursue a multiple cloud strategy and will purchase cloud services from more than one provider, according to IC documents obtained by The Capitol Forum.

A market survey for the contract states that "[t]he Government is pursuing a multiple cloud strategy to increase access to cloud innovation and reduce the disadvantages associated with using a single cloud service provider."

The new contract, called Commercial Cloud Enterprise (C2E), is the successor to the IC's landmark Commercial Cloud Services (C2S) contract, which was awarded to Amazon Web Services (AWS) in 2013. The IC expects C2E to be valued in the "tens of billions," according to the market survey.

C2E's multiple-provider approach stands in stark contrast to DOD's $10 billion JEDI cloud services contract, which has been criticized for its single-provider, winner-take-all structure. AWS is widely considered to be the front-runner for JEDI.

JEDI is currently the subject of a court challenge, filed by JEDI bidder Oracle, regarding potential conflicts of interest involving DOD officials with ties to AWS. The lawsuit is on hold reinvestigates the potential conflicts to determine whether they impacted the procurement process.

The IC's decision to embrace multiple cloud providers, along with increasing evidence of potential ties between AWS and DOD during JEDI's development, suggests that DOD might go back and redo its cloud procurement process, according to government contracting experts interviewed by The Capitol Forum.

"The whole idea of a follow-on procurement is to learn from what you've had before. If the single provider didn't work for the intelligence community, what makes DOD think it will work for them?" said Berenzweig Leonard partner Terry O'Connor. "I would think this is a real eye-opener."

"A lot of Amazon's self-promotion consists of touting its unique role with the intelligence community," said Charles Tiefer, a professor at the University of Baltimore School of Law. "A recomposition, even of just a part of the services, would raise questions about Amazon's 'past performance,' which is always an important part of this kind of procurement."

Tiefer said he thinks it is definitely a possibility that DOD will revise its approach to JEDI. "This is a ten-year contract. The amount of time it would take to go back and do it right is a brief period compared to ten years of contracting. And they might decide to have a different and better structure, instead of a single-award contract which would be winner-take-all, probably for Amazon. Instead, they could go to the more usual and flexible multiple-award contract," Tiefer said.

"It depends on how clearly the DOD thinks that there's a good possibility that they screwed up," O'Connor said. "We've seen agencies go back and start from the beginning just because they wanted to avoid issues down the road."

The Capitol Forum was unable to obtain comment from CIA, AWS, Oracle, Microsoft, or IBM by the time of publication.

Congress has shown concern about JEDI's single-award structure. The FY2019 Defense Appropriations bill included language prohibiting DOD from spending money to migrate applications to the JEDI cloud until the agency provided Congress with more information, including “opportunities for multiple cloud service providers.”

In October 2018, Representatives Steve Womack (R-AR) and Tom Cole (R-OK) sent a letter to the DOD inspector general requesting an investigation into the JEDI development process.

Representative Jim Langevin (D-RI) previously told The Capitol Forum that Congress intends to maintain rigorous oversight over JEDI as the procurement continues.

Elissa Smith, Department of Defense spokesperson, told The Capitol Forum in an email that she would not comment on the decisions of other agencies, and provided the following statement: “The

DOD Cloud Initiative includes multiple cloud efforts, including Joint Enterprise Defense Infrastructure (JEDI) Cloud. Both general purpose clouds and fit-for-purpose clouds will be a part of the long-term cloud strategy. The DOD has unique and critical missions on a large scale.

DOD will remain a multi-cloud, multi-vendor environment. JEDI Cloud, as a pathfinder, is a critical first step toward an enterprise cloud solution that enables data-driven decision making and allows DOD to take full advantage of applications and data resources.”

8) US Air Force grounds B-1 bomber fleet over safety concerns

CNN.com | Ryan Browne | Thursday, March 28, 2019

The US Air Force ordered immediate inspections of its entire fleet of B-1 bombers Thursday over safety concerns related to its “drogue chute system” which is used to right the aircraft's ejection seat prior to the seat's main parachute deploying.

While none of the planes are being allowed to fly, the order is technically not an official grounding of the fleet, as each individual aircraft will be allowed to immediately return to flying operations upon inspection.

“The safety stand-down will afford maintenance and Aircrew Flight Equipment technicians the necessary time to thoroughly inspect each aircraft,” the Air Force's Global Strike Command said in a statement.

“As these inspections are completed and any issues are resolved, aircraft will return to flight,” the statement added.

Global Strike Command would not estimate how long the inspections would take.

Air Force officials say the drogue chute problem is unrelated to a previous issue with the aircraft's ejection seat which had led to a similar safety stand-down last year.

All of the Air Force's 61 B-1 bombers are currently stationed in the US so the order will not impact operations.

The B-1 is a conventional bomber and was used to conduct airstrikes against Syrian military targets in 2018 following the regime's use of chemical weapons.

9). NTIA looks to boost lasting spectrum plan

Federal Computer Week | Mark Rockwell | Wednesday, March 27, 2019

Data from federal agencies on their spectrum use is rolling into the National Telecommunications and Information Administration as the agency tries to set a 15-year, forward-looking policy for federal use of the airwaves, according to its top official.

The Trump administration is trying to put a federal spectrum policy in place that will last, instead of having to be addressed and replaced by successive administrations, said David Redl, assistant secretary of Commerce for Communications and Information and administrator of the NTIA.

"Anyone who's come into this space for a significant period of time knows presidents come in and immediately rescinded the previous presidential memoranda and put their own stamp on spectrum policy," said Redl at the Hudson Institute in Washington, D.C., on March 27.

"President Trump wanted us to move beyond that" to create a persistent federal spectrum strategy that can be built on, he said.

The approach, he said, will address the ongoing concerns of shrinking pools of spectrum for widening licensed or unlicensed spectrum uses.

Asking federal agencies to "do more with less, or do the same with less" with their spectrum holdings has worked for a while, he said. With an ever tightening supply, "those days are largely gone. At this point, we're trying to figure out what are our needs going forward?" said Redl.

Some agencies, he said, were surprised NTIA asked for 15 years-worth of forward-looking data. "In spectrum time, 15 years is an eternity, but it was our way of saying, 'We want to be able to forecast what you need going forward.'"

Extreme demand for the limited resources is driving systems and the services using them closer together in bandwidths and forcing more sharing between public and federal applications.

He cited the work on the Citizens Broadband Radio Service (CBRS) to share spectrum in the 3.5 GHz band between incumbent Navy radar systems and commercial users as an important example of dual use. Testing of the two systems that allow that sharing is ongoing, he said.

In the Nov. 28 memo, Redl told federal agencies to submit initial reports on their spectrum requirements for the next decade and a half by Feb. 21. Final reports, he said, are due by April 23.

The assessment will be used to develop a comprehensive, long-term national spectrum strategy by July 22.

That summer policy deadline, he said, is firm.

"We're in the data gathering phase," he told FCW in an interview after his presentation.

"We're going to have to harmonize it and see where there are trends, themes. We have to go where the data takes us."

Redl said he hadn't read the initial reports yet. He also said wouldn't be surprised if some agencies were very conservative with how they handle their spectrum holdings. "I don't know if that's the case, but given the nature of some of the missions that we're talking about, I wouldn't be surprised if agencies are conservative."

Subject: Associate Press and Daily Beast media queries regarding DLA Energy procurement at Lynchburg Airport,
Importance: High

Brig. Gen. Miller and Mr. Beougher,

In tomorrow's media clips there will be an article from the Daily Beast regarding an $889,087 Into-Plane Contract that was awarded to Freedom Aviation. The article suggests that the contract was awarded inappropriately as a favor to Jerry Falwell, whose Liberty University is said to be the owner of Freedom Aviation. The article is pasted below since it is behind a paywall.

Bob Burns from the Associated Press has picked on the story and is asking DLA to explain how this contract came to be awarded to Freedom Aviation. HQ PA Pat Mackin has responded to both reporters and explained (with information provided by Dave Peterson) that the contract was awarded under a routine, competitive acquisition for into-plane contract fuel that covered the area from Maine to Florida and listed 94 airports. Freedom Aviation is the sole fixed-base operator at the Lynchburg Regional Airport and submitted the only offer for this location. Freedom used to be call Virginia Aviation and bought Virginia Aviation in 2014. Virginia Aviation had the same contract before the name change. Freedom Aviation's offer price of $2.69024 per gallon, subject to market price adjustment, was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region.

OSD PA is aware of the queries and is working with (b) (6). I will keep you apprised if there are any new developments.

Just months after President Donald Trump took office, the federal government signed a contract to buy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of jet fuel from a university run by one of the president’s top political supporters.

The Pentagon’s energy-procurement arm inked the contract < Caution-
<https://govtribe.com/award/federal-idv-award/indefinite-delivery-contract-spe60017d0090> > , valued at nearly $900,000, with a company called Freedom Aviation on May 9, 2017, and has purchased more than $400,000 in turbine fuel from the company since then. Freedom Aviation is wholly owned < Caution-
https://apps.irs.gov/pub/epostcard/cor/540946734_201706_990_2018103015847302.pdf > by Liberty University, a conservative school in Lynchburg, Virginia, led by high-profile Trump supporter Jerry Falwell Jr.

Freedom Aviation owns six planes, according to Federal Aviation Administration records < Caution-
https://registry.faa.gov/aircraftinquiry/Name_Results.aspx?Nametxt=FREEDOM+AVIATION+INC&sort_option=1&PageNo=1 > , and maintains them at a Lynchburg hangar for Liberty’s popular flight school. It also provides charter flights to the general public, and Falwell has used the aircraft for travel involving his personal, business, and political affairs. But neither Freedom nor C&C Aviation, another company owned by the university, had ever won a federal fuel contract prior to Trump’s election.

The Defense Logistics Agency, the agency that actually buys the fuel, said that Freedom Aviation was hired to refuel military and government aircraft at the Lynchburg airport, where it’s the sole “fixed-base operator,” and that it “submitted the only offer” for those services. Its per-gallon rate, $2.69, “was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region,” according to DLA spokesman Patrick Mackin.

Liberty did not respond to questions about the contract.

Government ethicists, however, say the agreement raises red flags given Liberty's apparent lack of experience in providing such services to the federal government, and Falwell's outspoken backing for the Trump administration.

"It's possible there's a legitimate reason why the Defense Department is sending hundreds of thousands of dollars to one of President Trump's biggest political supporters, but everything about this contract raises red flags," Austin Evers, the executive director of transparency group American Oversight, said when presented with The Daily Beast's findings. "The Trump administration has lost the benefit of the doubt on anything that even resembles a conflict of interest."

Falwell, whose father was a prominent evangelical leader, remains one of the president's most committed backers in the conservative Christian community. And Trump has reciprocated that support. Just four days after the Pentagon inked its contract with Freedom Aviation, the president gave the commencement address at Liberty University.

Falwell also appears to have used Freedom Aviation in service of the Trump campaign. He officially endorsed Trump in late January 2016, and joined him at a rally in Council Bluffs, Iowa, a day before the state's crucial Republican presidential caucus. About a week later, the Trump campaign paid Freedom Aviation < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201603209011931795> > more than $19,000 for air travel expenses.

Right to Rise, a super PAC supporting 2016 Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush, also paid Freedom Aviation the year before, writing the company < Caution-<http://docquery.fec.gov/cgi-bin/fecimg/?201507319000514783> > a $2,000 check on May 11, 2015. That was two days after Bush, who had not yet declared his candidacy, gave that year's commencement speech at Liberty.

Falwell has acknowledged using university-owned planes for personal and business travel in Liberty's annual tax filings.

This was an Into-Plane contract, meaning it's an agreement between DLA and an airport fixed-base operator (in this case, Freedom Aviation) to accept a government credit card for fuel purchases by military and other federal air crews. (b) (6) and Dave,

Per HQ PA, they have come back with this proposed response.

Per your question regarding the DLA Energy jet fuel contract with Freedom Aviation, there is nothing unusual with this contract. This was a competitive acquisition for into-plane contract fuel that covered the area from Maine to Florida and listed 94 airports. Freedom Aviation is the fixed-base operator at the Lynchburg Regional Airport and submitted the only offer for this location. Its offer price of $2.69024 per gallon, subject to market price adjustment, was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region. This type of contract allows military and other federal government agency pilots and aircrews to purchase fuel with an AIR Card® (Aviation Into-plane Reimbursement card) at commercial airports.

Irene,

Proposed response: Freedom Aviation is the fixed-base operator at Lynchburg Regional Airport and submitted a proposal under a competitive solicitation for into-plane locations. Its offer price of $2.69024 per gallon, subject to market price adjustment, was determined fair and reasonable in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation and was in line with prices at other airports in the region.
